

Question: What would you like to tell other students about this course?
Term: Spring 2016. Instructor: GEHSITZ, MARKUS. Section: ECON 2200 S12
GREAT PROFESSOR
Useful information
Good Professor, great course!
Too much homework to do in little amount of time.
He is very nice and explains well. like his classes.
This course is for you if you are analytical and love math.
This course requires students to understand the textbook clearly as possible.
hes a good prof, he really tries to help you but a hard class and material got very confusing
A very challenging baptism by fire into the world of economics. Dust off your mathematical and graph skills.
It's a great course that teaches you to appreciate Economics, and to understand its problems and applications.
lots of homework, pre lecture, post lecture homework, need to to practice homework to do the actual homework on mindtap, online portal
This class was done using Mind Tap, while it was a great tool, quizzes were excessive and using a test bank makes it near impossible for the Prof to review homework for those seeking clarity.
Great Course and Instructor!!! We used Mindtap this semester which made understanding easier. It also gave use many examples of problems and resolutions. Do your homework. It makes passing almost guaranteed.
Everyone should take this course, regardless if its a requirement or not. This course will help you understand how the economy works and will help you make good business decisions, even if its just dealing with the household economy.
Although it is a instruction of microeconomics, it is somewhat difficult. Besides actively participate in class, you need to read the textbook in order to do well. We use midtap to submit our pre-lecture and post-lecture quizzes, so we get chance to read the chapters before class, which is pretty good. One midterm and one final.

Close

©2007-2014 Brooklyn College. All rights reserved.